

PERMANENT MISSION OF GHANA TO THE UNITED NATIONS

Ghana, however, constraints to the Corridor's success are numerous, including the existence of existing infrastructure, which may be incompatible with the proposed corridor, and the lack of adequate funding.

shall be without prejudice to the delimitation of the maritime boundary which may be agreed between them.

1. The two countries shall explore their continental shelf in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. They shall also explore the continental shelf of the other party in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. A

1. The two countries shall explore their continental shelf in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. They shall also explore the continental shelf of the other party in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. A

1. The two countries shall explore their continental shelf in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. They shall also explore the continental shelf of the other party in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. A

1. The two countries shall explore their continental shelf in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. They shall also explore the continental shelf of the other party in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. A

1. The two countries shall explore their continental shelf in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. They shall also explore the continental shelf of the other party in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. A

1. The two countries shall explore their continental shelf in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. They shall also explore the continental shelf of the other party in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. A

1. The two countries shall explore their continental shelf in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. They shall also explore the continental shelf of the other party in accordance with the principles set out in Article 77 of the Convention. A