Caribbean Regional Seminar on the Implementation of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child for the Eradication of Child Labour

Workshop on National Mechanisms

16-17 February 1994

Workshop on National Mechanisms for the Implementation of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child for the Eradication of Child Labour

Introduction

The Committee on the Rights of the Child has expressed its concern about the lack of progress in the eradication of child labour, and has urged States to take more effective measures to address this problem.

In the context of this concern, the Committee has urged States to establish national mechanisms for the implementation of the Convention, with a view to ensuring that the rights of the child are fully protected and that the Convention is effectively implemented.

The Committee has also expressed its concern about the lack of progress in the eradication of child labour, and has urged States to take more effective measures to address this problem.
