In the country of arrival, it is crucial to guarantee that labour law and recruitment mechanisms are...
fair and ethical and that they protect migrants' rights.

It is also important to ensure that the conditions in which migrants live and work are safe and dignified. This includes providing access to basic services such as food, water, shelter, and medical care. It also means ensuring that workers have the right to form unions and negotiate collective agreements. In addition, it is essential to prevent discrimination based on gender, ethnicity, or religion in all aspects of migration and settlement.
