criminal groups' - even if they reach their destination, they face an uncertain reception and a precarious future'

1'9 - the challenge to world leaders is moral and humanitarian' We are determined, first and foremost, to save lives' We will combat with all the means at our d

- 1'16 We welcome the extremely valuable report from the Secretary-General, entitled 'In Safety and Dignity: Addressing Large Movements of Refugees and Migrants', which was published in March 2016 pursuant to General Assembly resolution A/RES/70/175, in preparation for this High Level Meeting. We reaffirm the contributions made by the London Conference on Supporting Syria and the Region in February 2016, the High Level Meeting on Global Responsibility (Sharing through Doha) for Admission of Syrian Refugees in March 2016 and the World Humanitarian Summit in May 2016.
- 1'17 We favour a new approach to addressing forced displacement and protracted crises which would not only deal with immediate humanitarian needs but would also reduce vulnerability and improve resilience (strengthening the nexus between humanitarian assistance and development cooperation).
