

With regard to treaty implementation, this Committee can play an important role in allowing states to exchange information and identify best practices with a view to helping states strengthen their approaches, and their commitment to, treaty implementation.

And, of course, it goes without saying that states need to be able to participate in multilateral

