Our government demonstrated forbearance, taking care not to unleash a greater force to minimize civilian casualties even at the cost of more military and police casualties - in what became a slow, punishing, door-to-door, street-by-street fight.

Military operations were carefully calibrated to achieve this aim, consistent with International Humanitarian Law - even if the government lost face by the slow and deliberate progress of its forces.

safe passage of trapped civilians and enable vital supplies to reach those unable to leave thoir nrotacted nacitions within the battle zone. With record to the tone of thousands displaced, the government addressed health and sanitation concerns in the evacuation centers; but most of the displaced quickly found safety and shelter with families and friands.
