1. Introduction

1.1. Background

The Commission on the Revision of the Constitution was established in 1963 and has the honor to submit to you the final report of its work.

We should like to express our appreciation to the members of the Commission who have worked hard to complete this task.

First – the draft articles highlight human rights and the principles of human dignity and underline that response to disasters shall take place in accordance with the humanitarian principles of humanity, impartiality, neutrality and independence. In this context, the Nordic countries would like to recall that integration of a gender perspective in humanitarian assistance is necessary to reach all parts of the population. A gender perspective ensures effective and
