

	PIE/W AUDIT
· •
 		_

Ľ
=
		=
/
A s.
 		_
	Report of the International Law Commission (Cluster I)
	The Distriction of the Control of th

July Ber	 Págás-sacrá bu ált Pairtain la trad Astula sy afálra Minisáns af Fausius Affeisa
/	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·

		=
1.

		=

	The draft carelusiane as auctomos international law offer a valuable avidance on the identification of a comptiment
=	 -
	T.
_
_	7
_
Ī
i
=
_
_
-
=
	elusive but fundamental source of international law. Brazil agrees with the Commission's recommendations, particularly elusive. but fundamental source of international law. Brazil agrees with the Commission's recommendations, particularly
_	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the
_	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard.
	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard.
	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard.
	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard.
	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard.
	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard.
1	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard.
	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard. The first constraints a believe a believe between precise guidence on the one hand, and received flexibility on the
	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard.
	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard. The first constraints a believe a believe between precise guidence on the one hand; and received flexibility on the
	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard. The first constraint a balance between precise suidence on the one band, and received flexibility, on the
	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard. The first constitute a holonous between preside suideness on the one hand; and received flexibility on the
	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard. The destination of the second state of the se
	The perfect conditations attilize a holomore habitions preside autidopes on the one hand; and reasonable flavibility on the
	on the need to follow up the suggestions contained in the Secretariat memorandum on ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available. An online database with State practice relating to international law, based on information received from States, would constitute a positive step in this regard. The first constitute a holonous between preside suideness on the one hand; and received flexibility, on the