On Agenda item 82:

Report of the Special Committee on the Charter of the United Nations and on the Strengthening of the Role of the Organization"

New York, 17 October 2019

I have the honour to deliver this statement on behalf of the Non-Aligned Movement.

The Non-Aligned Movement continues to attach great importance to the work of the Special Committee on the Charter of the United Nations and on the Strengthening of the Role of the Organization and considers that it should play a key role in the current reform process of the United Nations, as mandated in Resolution 3499(XXX) of 15 December 1975.

The Manila Declaration, which was negotiated and adopted by the Charter Committee in 1982, is only one of the major achievements of the committee, which demonstrates that the committee could be considered as a forum to clarify and promote ~~general international law and charter provisions~~ fall within the competence of the latter organs, and the attempts to enter areas of norm-setting and establishing definitions which fall within the purview of the General Assembly.

The Non-Aligned Movement reaffirms that the reform of the Organization should of the United Nations and preserve the legal framework of this constitutional instrument.

Sanctions regimes should avoid unintended consequences in the target State or third States which may lead to violations of human rights and fundamental freedoms. they should not hinder humanitarian assistance from reaching the civilian population.

In this regard, the objectives of sanctions regimes should be clearly defined, based on tenable legal grounds, and their imposition should be for a specified timeframe. It should be lifted as soon as the objectives are achieved. The conditions demanded of the State or party on which sanctions are imposed should be clearly defined and be subject to its impact and periodic review.

upon the Secretary General to address this issue effectively and on a priority basis. We also express our satisfaction over the availability of studies on the internet and regular updating
