Mr. Chair

I have the honour to deliver this statement on behalf of the Group of 77 and China under Agenda Item 79: "United Nations Programme of Assistance in the Teaching, Study, Dissemination and Wider Appreciation of International Law".

The Group of 77 and China commends you on your chairmanship of this Committee and assures you of our full support.

I would also like to express the Group's appreciation to the Secretary-General for his report, published as document A/75/389, which details activities undertaken to implement the Programme of Assistance during 2020, the plans for 2021 and related administrative and financial implications.

We also commend the Codification Division of the Office of Legal Affairs for their continued efforts to implement the Programme of Assistance as well as recognize the contribution of the Division for Ocean Affairs and the Law of the Sea (DOALOS).

Mr. Chair

The Group of 77 and China reaffirms its support for the Programme of Assistance which serves as an effective means of strengthening international peace and security and promoting friendly relations and cooperation among States through the dissemination of international law. Fifty-five years after its establishment, the Programme continues to be relevant in furthering the objectives of the United Nations by training generations of specialists, particularly those from the developing countries, in the field of international law.

The Group of 77 and China appreciates that the necessary resources were budgeted for the administration of the Programme in 2019-2020 and reiterates its call for the continued funding of the Programme in years to come. Such funding remains essential for conducting the International Law Fellowship Programme and the United Nations Regional Courses in International Law; issuing publications; developing and maintaining the United Nations Audiovisual Library of International Law; and for the award of the Hamilton Shirley Amerasinghe Memorial Fellowship on the Law of the Sea. These capacity-building activities help to improve the participation of developing countries in the multilateral arena.

We also express our
