This is a step forward in the working methods of this committee that we hope can be replicated for other issues and that, in addition, allowed us to know in greater detail the positions and concerns of the delegations. Without a sincere and open dialogue, it will not be possible to move forward and reach agreements.

As several delegations have already pointed out, it is important that we focus our efforts on getting the language of the proposed articles right, so that they are meaningful and effective.

We are very close to making a decision during the seventy session and Costa Rica calls for the convening of an international conference, under the auspices of the United Nations, for the negotiation and adoption of said convention.

Mr. President,
