

THE DEPUTY SECRETARY-GENERAL

MESSAGE ON THE OCCASION OF THE ANNUAL MINISTERIAL MEETING OF

LDCs, as they face the dual challenge of financing the pandemic response while avoiding a major debt crisis.

In May, to articulate a large-scale, coordinated and comprehensive multilateral response, the Secretary-General, alongside with the Prime Ministers of Canada and Jamaica, launched an initiative that put Financing for Development in the Era of COVID-19 and Beyond.

Six discussions established under this initiative have been working on a menu of policy options to address a wide range of interlinked issues, with attention to the diversity of country and regional contexts.

These include external finance and remittances; jobs and inclusive growth; recovering better for sustainability; global liquidity and financial stability; debt vulnerability; engagement with private sector creditors; and illicit financial flows.

The recommendations were discussed at a meeting of Ministers of Finance earlier this month and will be the subject of discussion at a high-level meeting of Leaders during the General Assembly.

Looking ahead, we will continue pushing for support to LDCs through this and other avenues through these very challenging times, and we will mobilize the international community to make bold decisions for an effective response and recovery from this development emergency.

Let me now turn to the implementation of the UN Development System reform, which is in full swing in many LDCs, and which I mentioned earlier helped us in responding in record time and in coherent fashion as a UN system supports countries in this pandemic.

Implementation of the new Cooperation Frameworks for six countries began this year, and eight additional LDCs have been conducting their Common Country Analyses and preparing Cooperation Frameworks in line with priorities of those countries.

Seventeen more LDCs will soon start the process to undertake Common Country Analyses and design Cooperation Frameworks with implementation expected to start in 2022.

We are encouraged that 12 LDCs are in the process of graduation.

COVID-19 should not be allowed to halt or reverse this progress. If anything we should use opportunities to leap frog some of these opportunities.

Financing sustainable graduation is a priority for the Secretary-General and is part of his Roadmap for Financing the 2030 Agenda.

The UN Inter-Agency task force on LDC graduation will continue to bring together all relevant UN actors at global, regional and country levels to support countries through their graduation and assist a smooth transition.

In short, the United Nations is fully committed to assisting the progress of all LDCs.

We will continue working with you to forge a new global development architecture and ensure you receive coherent and effective international support tailored to your needs.

Together, we will deliver inclusive, resilient and sustainable societies that fulfill the aspirations of the Istanbul Programme of Action.

Thank you.
