

PBC Annual Session
12 November 2018

Introduction

The resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture (A/RES/70/262 and S/RES/2282 (2016)), adopted on 27 April 2016 by the General Assembly and the Security Council, reaffirmed the role of the Peacebuilding Commission (PBC) as a dedicated intergovernmental advisory body to bring a strategic approach and coherence to international peacebuilding efforts. They stressed the importance of the PBC as a platform to convene all relevant actors within and outside the United Nations, including Member States, national authorities, UN missions and country teams, international, regional and sub-regional organizations, international financial institutions (IFIs), civil society, women's groups, youth organizations and, where relevant, the private sector and national human rights institutions, in order to provide recommendations and information to improve coordination, to develop and share good practices in peacebuilding, including on institution building, and to ensure predictable financing to peacebuilding. The resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture also encourage the PBC to consider diversifying its working methods to enhance its efficiency and flexibility in support of sustaining peace including by, among other things, considering regional and cross-cutting issues relevant to peacebuilding and sustaining peace. Over the last two years, the PBC has convened several meetings on regional and cross-border peacebuilding challenges, including on the Ebola crisis, the Mano River Union, the Great Lakes, West Africa and the Sahel.
