and continues to evolve. "#"L still controls small pockets of territory in #yria and they are still present in "ra$.! heir %virtual caliphate& remains intact. "#"L is not yet defeated.! he returning foreign fighters remain a serious global challenge.

'ut of approximately ()) Norwegian foreign fighters who have traveled to #yria and "ra$, about *) have been killed. +pproximately *) are still in the region and their status is unknown. +bout ,) foreign fighters have returned to Norway. National governments have the primary responsibility for countering terrorism and preventing violent extremism. ! he complex nature of this threat underscores the need for partnerships. Moreover, the threat from terrorism and violent extremism must be met with a comprehensive, long-term, whole-of-society approach.

Chair.

! he basis for Norway.s approach is the National +ction lan for reventing /adicali0ation and 1iolent 2xtremism. ! he Government reports on the measures set out in the +ction lan. Norway.s policies are based on broad cooperation between authorities and civil society organi0ations, at national and local levels. 3or this to be successful, it has to be a genuine two-way dialogue.

! he Norwegian Government has put counterterrorism and preventing violent extremism high on its agenda. 4e support the five lines of effort of the Global Coalition against "#"L. "n 5) (6, Norway and the 7ingdom of 8ordan established a ermanent 9N Group of 3riends of 12.

Chair,

Let me highlight four points of importance for the review of the Madrid Guidelines.

3irst, the security risk associated with returning foreign fighters should be determined on a case-by-case basis. 2ffective investigation and prosecution of acts of terrorism and violent extremism is key.

4e should keep in mind that returnees are not a homogeneous group, i.e. men, women and minors. ! he Guidelines should therefore effectively in

"thank you.