

There must be determination in ensuring that these lessons learned from Rwanda are truly learned, risk factors mitigated early, and populations protected from another genocide. This determination and efforts remain essential.

This is why KWIBUKA30 is especially important today: to remind us of our obligation to learn, to prevent, to act. For those whose lives were taken away in the genocide against the Tutsi in Rwanda, and for all those at risk across the world today.