policy on women machinery for the securing sectoral

Since the Government of St. Lucia approved a national policy on women and a five-year Plan of Action in 1991, the government and advancement of women has been working towards s to be done in supporting and strengthening the national machinery to be more proactive in coordinating and strengthening sectoral involvement in for its implementation. However, four areas of priority were selected for action by the national machinery viz:

- ◆ Women and Poverty
- ◆ Women and Health
- ◆ Violence against Women
- ◆ Women in power and decision-making

There has been no major breakthrough in any of the areas identified. However, there has been heightened awareness in these areas, and that has served to place certain gender issues on the public agenda.

Efforts have been concentrated on &w

- The establishment of community local points to represent the needs, concerns and interest of women in their respective communities;
- Educating violence against women and girls through -
- Mass media campaign (community discussions, radio/TV talks, production of pamphlets and bumper stickers);
- Training programmes in counseling for community leaders
- Formation of support groups for victims and perpetrators
 - Allocation of funds in the national budget for the establishment of a shelter for abused women and children.

Between 1995-1998, some noticeable changes have occurred in the situation of women and girls that have not been included in the priority areas selected.

There has been a marked increase in enrolment at all levels. This follows a regional trend where more females participate in the education system but there has been no scientific explanation for this phenomenon. At the tertiary level the majority of persons enrolled in continuing education classes include working women seeking to advance themselves professionally and occupationally. Enrolment in adult literacy classes

Employment figures show an increase in the number of males employed.

There has been a decrease in female employment particularly in the areas of agriculture, manufacturing, unskilled work and professionals. However, in 1997 there was a narrowing of the male/female gap at the middle management level.

The decrease in female employment could be attributed to the closure of some garment and electronic factories on the island. Also the banana situation as this relates to the WTO ruling on Windward Island bananas has had a significant impact on rural women and the economy in general.

In the media, more women have entered the profession, and there has also been an increase of female managers.

In terms of institutional mechanisms set up for the advancement of women, no formal inter-ministerial collaboration presently exists to integrate gender perspectives in general policies relating to all spheres of society.

In the context of Human Rights, educational materials (pamphlets) have been produced and disseminated and our air sensitization programmes organized on radio and television to heighten awareness on issues pertaining to women's rights.

Women have benefited from projects such as the Rural Enterprise Development Programme and the St. Lucia Rural Enterprise Project. Women and youth have been identified as target groups for focus in a poverty alleviation drive. The NWM has conducted training in marketable skills for women and young girls. These women have not been able to fully use these skills for generating an income because of the difficulty in accessing start up capital and the conditions attached.

Following the 12th Biennial Conference (1995 to 1997), there was much media focus, enthusiasm and discussion on gender equality.

3 (a) Four areas of priority have been identified from the Platform of Action namely: Women and Poverty, Women and Health, Violence against Women and Women in power and Decision-making. No specific structures have been put in place to institutionalise follow-up to an implementation Platform for Action.

(b) No special arrangements exist to coordinate the various follow-up to global conferences. Generally these efforts are incorporated in the work of individual Ministries/ Departments where they coincide with national priorities.

(c) Generally NGOs involvement and participation are derived from the NWM. However, some NGOs for example, the Women's Arm of the St. Lucia Teachers' Union have developed programmes based on the goals of the Platform.

Funding has already been secured to establish a shelter for abused women and children.

- Women and poverty

National consultations were held in several communities to identify the needs of women in poverty stricken areas. Training programmes in entrepreneurial skills were conducted for young mothers in these areas.

Government has established a Department of Social Services to benefit women.

- Women and Health

Workshops on Health/Sexuality were conducted by community groups to address the problem of teenage pregnancy and Sexually Transmitted Diseases (STDs). Participants included women of all age groups, and some men also who benefited from the sessions.

Education materials have also been developed on STDs, including a booklet on "Sexual Offences and the Law" to familiarize women on issues which

9. The Vision for the advancement of women and gender equality for the new millenium.

The institutionalization of a gender and development framework for policy formulation, implementation, monitoring and evaluation in the public and private sectors.

This could be facilitated through the establishment of the Gender Management System and a national machinery comprising both government and NGO representatives for monitoring and evaluation purposes.

Achievement of gender equity and equality with men and women enjoying equal benefits of development. Institutional mechanisms/support structures
