The strategy has been actively promoted and pursued after its endorsement by the Executive Board. By 1990, it is expected that all country programmes should be fully responsive to the programme objectives being pursued; the major components of the strategy will have been built into the framework of most country programmes; and at least 50 per cent of staff will have acquired the mentionity and abilla necessary to incorporate the needs and con-

So far, the activities of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) to implement the Nairobi Forward-looking Strategies have

United Nations Development Programme

In 1987, the initial focus of the Division for Women in Development of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) was on the elaboration of a policy paper for UNDP staff, consisting of the UNDP policy goals for women in development and procedures for implementation. It includes a project review

	The present focus will continue, with intensified efforts being made to reach women through UNDP development assistance. Emphasis will be on formulating projects that, from the very start, take into consideration the gender distribution in the particular field of activity. The goal of increasing women's access to and participation in development through UNDP activities and in line with the Forward-looking Strategies will continue to be pursued.

United Nations Fund for Population Activities

Information dissemination and storage, key factors of the overall plans of UNIFEM, are put into operation through its Knowledge Bank System. Occasional papers (seven to date) are published to share knowledge and experience on innovative and catalytic areas such as credit support systems and food-cycle technology.

United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees

Actions called for in the Forward-looking Strategies are reflected in various protection and assistance measures UNHCR has taken in recent years.
